

I believe this law should not be changed. It is something that is very beneficial to citizens. Before it was put into effect, I was receiving at least 4 to 5 calls a day at my home. I would find my answering machine full. Now when I arrive home only the messages I care about are there. Also my evenings are much less stressful as I don't have to keep hanging up on telemarketers. The other part of this that is also very upsetting is that this is happening even when you have an unlisted number as I do. You pay an extra charge not to have your number listed and yet it still seems to be available to anyone who wants it.
